1. Conducted surveys of court managers’ salaries and benefits to address mobility of professional court managers. The lack of pension and benefit portability hampers court professionals’ ability to seek new opportunities in other parts of the country.

2. NACM forged a partnership with Michigan State University which is a testament to increased interest in the development in professional leadership for court administration. A court certification program was the end product.

3. On the educational front, the National Center for State Courts has been collaborating with NACM to strengthen ICM to meet the needs of professional court managers and recently convened a focus group to discuss ways to revitalize the Court Executive Development Program.

4. NACM started a succession planning effort to reach out to ensure the replenishment of the “brains” behind the profession as some of the court administrators retire.

5. Major changes were made to NACM bylaws.

7. Celebrated 20th Anniversary of the association at our annual San Francisco conference with a special “Hall of Presidents” presentation using NACM past presidents.
