- b. Board of Directors Vacancy bylaws discuss a vacancy in the Officer or Board positions. Bylaws say the board can decide at the next board meeting, this one, if a vacancy should be filled. Officers met briefly to discuss to provide a recommendation and felt the best way to move forward would be to not fill the position and wait until next July for regular recruitment. Jeffrey asked the Board's thoughts. Kathy made a motion that the board does not fill the vacant director position until July and will have vacancies for three-year terms and one two-year term. Rick seconded the motion. All in favor, none opposed. The motion passed.

3. President-Elect

- a. Rick shared the NCSC Board meeting information.
- B. Rick shared the midyear workshops and presenters. Kelly asked about the Core sessions and if all three sessions will give credits. Dawn asked if the Core sessions would be at different times. Rick confirmed and said that they hope to have them different days as well.

Greg said a minimum number of people of 10 and the same rate as the early bird. Kristie thought a minimum of 5 attendees per group. Kathy made a motion for groups of 5 or more have $400 member and $550 nonmember rate for the midyear conference through January 27. Kathy withdrew the motion. Kathy made a motion for groups of 5 or momembers, $550 for nonmembers with a deadline of January 13, 2023. Kathy withdrew the motion. Brandon is trying to familiarize himself with the Process Street program. He will be asking board members to review different sections of the operations manual.
- b. Five resolutions received one comment from a member about one of the resolutions. Kent made a motion that the board vote to support the resolutions. As it is a committee recommendation, no second is required. Bylaw amendments will go out for annual meeting in July and be sent to membership prior to that in April.
- c. Kent discussed a few changes to the resolution and nomination process. Resolution process states that the president will name chairs and also select members. The committee is recommending the member part be stricken. The nomination process change they're advising will make sure that if the nomination committee doesn't feel it has qualified candidates for positions it will have recommendations on what the committee can do.

National Court Reporters Association Update Prepared for the National Association for Court Management

Who the National Court Reporters Association Represents

NCRA is the Association for stenographic court reporters and captioners. Members include official court reporters, freelancers, broadcast captioners, CART providers, and certified legal videographers. NCRA has had the pleasure of partnering with the courts of our great nation to ensure the timely, impartial, accurate, and optimal delivery of court transcripts.

Major priority

NCRA is committed to growing the stenographic court reporting and captioning professions to ensure an ample supply of high-quality experts are available to fill the increasing number of job opportunities both in and out of the courtroom. The NCRA A to Z[®] Intro to Machine Steno program is a free, 6-8 week class that introduces interested individuals to the industry and helps focus resources on those more likely to succeed and is being conducted across the nation. It is offered online and as an asynchronous course. NCRA has partnered with several vendors to assist with making machine rentals and software available to participants.

Major priority

NCRA is committed to ensuring the security and preservation of the official record captured by a live stenographic court reporter and remains recognized as the gold standard in the industry. Only a live stenographic court reporter can offer watermarks and syllable-by-syllable authentication for every spoken word, the highest level of protection of private information, and personal responsibility and accountability for the official record.

Today's court reporters and captioners are savvy

The pandemic brought many new concerns and unexpected obstacles to our courtrooms. Stenographers offered the flexibility of operating remotely with equipment that was able to be relocated to their home during periods of quarantine with no courtroom delay. NCRA immediately hosted regional and national webinars on Zoom information sharing best practices to train stenographers on new systems and processes. Within minutes, a realtime stenographer has the capability of sending a 99 percent accurate realtime transcript across the room or across the ocean to judges and parties needing access to the record whenever and wherever legal proceedings can be held. In many jurisdictions, the court reporter brings the most advanced technology into the courtroom with realtime translation to the judge and counsel via streaming technology. NCRA offers a number of nationally recognized certifications that indicate the court reporter's or captioner's excellent skill set and ability to produce the highest quality product.

Budgetary and safety concerns

Many states and federal organizations create task forces to address different aspects of function such as budgeting, processing, funding, and other administrative concerns. Stenographers can serve to inform decision makers on the processes of making the record including how that record is guaranteed to be preserved and secured, a promise that cannot be met often by other means of making the record.

National Court Reporters Association Update Prepared for the National Association for Court Management

High dollar hidden costs as well as privacy risks associated with the use of electronic recording to capture the record are just two factors that should generate great concern by those who choose this method over relying on a live stenographic court reporter. Of major concern is that outsourcing an electronic recording to an outside transcription company often means the recording is being sent overseas, putting personal information at a high risk, and potentially even violating legislation that is designed to protect private information. Also of concern is that information needing to be redacted prior to outsourcing requires extra court staff time and could subject the court system to additional legal responsibility in regard to protecting someone's personal information. Additionally, transcripts produced from electronically recorded proceedings are replete with inaudibles and unintelligibles that can lead to critical information not being preserved and, in some cases, result in entire records being unable to be certified or be of any appellate use at all. By contrast, stenographic court reporters supplying individual laptops provide an additional backup should a court's system be hacked or attacked by ransomware.

The human presence lowers risks

The human factor involved in using a live stenographic court reporter to capture, preserve, and secure the record cannot be replaced or better protected by means such as facial recognition, voiceprint, and other biometric-related technology that is increasingly infiltrating various facets of everyday life. While some of this new technology brings potential benefits, there also lies significant data privacy and cybersecurity risks. Those risks can include the potential for fraud as well as inaccuracies that can lead to significant legal implications.

A live stenographic court reporter's notes and their ability to create instantaneous translation protects against these emerging risks that are created by relying on electronic recordings and other biometric-related technology.

Legal Education Program

NCRA also offers the Legal Education Program, an invaluable resource supported by the National Court Reporters Foundation (NCRF). The program facilitates the education of the legal profession about the role of the stenographic court reporter through a court reporter—led seminar to educate law students, attorneys, and judges on "Making the Record" and on the value of using stenographic reporting technology to capt[ure [and maximize the availability and use of] the official record. More information on the Legal Education Program can be found on NCRA.org/NCRF.

National Association for Presiding Judges and Court Executive Officers

Advancing Trial Court Leadership through Education, Research and Personal Growth

January 19, 2023

Mr. Jeffrey Tsunekawa, President National Association for Court Management

RE: FY 2022-23 NAPCO Association Report

Dear Mr. Tsunekawa,

It is our pleasure to briefly update NACM's leadership on NAPCO activities over the last six months and outline our plans for 2023. It is important that the leaders of both our associations keep lines of communication open and identify areas of collaboration and mutual benefit.

Our membership has grown to over 350 presiding judges and court executive officers; we continue to offer periodic webinars on a variety of important leadership topics; a comprehensive monograph on Presiding Judge and Court Executive Officer Trial Court Governance and Leadership Principles, Roles and Responsibilities, vetted via CCJ, COSCA and NACM has been gaining traction within the national community of courts – it references and supports NACM's Core Competencies as the basic skills CEOs should possess; August 2022, witnessed our return to an in-person Annual Leadership Academy and Conference in partnership with the National Center for State Courts, and hosted by the Superior Court of California, County of Orange, in Anaheim; and the development of a new NAPCO Strategic Campaign (Plan) to guide our activities over the next three years (2023-25). All these accomplishments are featured on our website at www.napco4courtleaders.org.

We begin our seventh year as a re-purposed organization from our roots as the National Conference of Metropolitan Courts which was chartered in 1963, some 60 years ago. Our Annual Conference will take place in Boston this year on August 20-23. It will focus on leadership competencies, education, and teambuilding among presiding (chief) judges and court executives, as well as their leadership teams in all state and local trial courts regardless of jurisdiction or size. We are excited about the future and remain confident that NAPCO is making a positive and lasting impact within our nation's judicial systems. We wish you and NACM the best in your 2023 Mid-Winter Conference in Minneapolis.
